

1,700 ETHIOPIANS REPORTED KILLED BY BOMBS

ITALIAN CONSUL IS GIVEN HIS PASSPORT

Action Follows Bombardment of Women and Children

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

Addis Ababa, Oct. 3.—The Ethiopian government today told Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, the Italian minister to Ethiopia, to get out of the country a few hours after official government advices told of the bombing of Addis Ababa by Italian airplanes with civilian casualties.

The Italian envoy was handed his passport and he will leave tomorrow.

(This action in international affairs usually is preliminary to the breaking of diplomatic relations between nations.)

Later a report that the Italians were retreating out of the area—which is part of the general Tigre region—was received by the Reuters correspondent.

Italian's Retreat

The Italian infantrymen were said to be moving back toward their bases in Eritrea under the cover of their airplanes.

The government announced the Red Cross headquarters at Addis Ababa had been bombed by four Italian planes and dispatched another protest to the League of Nations.

The Addis Ababa bombing, said the government, wrecked 15 houses. It declared 100 more were destroyed by the Italian air bombs at Adigrat.

Ethiopian sources expressed the belief that the inhabitants of Addis Ababa and Adigrat were not harmed by the Italians that the air attack was coming.

Some Ethiopians said they believed the attack was intended to invite reprisals on Italians who still are in Ethiopia in order to establish justification for an Italian conquest.

Mobilization Declared.

Early in the day, Emperor Haile Selassie proclaimed the general mobilization of his 10,000,000 subjects.

The three American mission hospitals here unfurled enormous Red Cross flags today while the United States legation put up its largest American flag as a warning to bombing planes.

Anti-aircraft guns, set up around the capital limits, fired practice bursts, using real bullets for the first time.

A battle raged in Agama province, the communique reported, after destruction of property as well as death to women and children in bombardments of Addis Ababa—where an Italian expeditionary force was crushed 40 years ago—and of Adigrat.

The King of Kings, while general mobilization orders set his native followers on the march to the front, protested to the League of Nations, alleging a violation by Italy of Ethiopia's frontiers, and a rupture of the League covenant.

Results Unknown.

Rasseyoum, governor of East Tigre province, bordering on Italy's colony of Eritrea, where nearly a quarter of a million Italian troops have been massed, conveyed the first news of the bombardment to the Emperor and reported that the results of the still-hanging battle were unknown.

The report of the air bombing raid reached the capital while the Emperor was at prayer in the imperial chapel at dawn, and created fears that there would be a similar raid against Addis Ababa.

Many foreigners sought refuge in their various legations, while a number of citizens started for the hills.

While historic Addis Ababa, Ethiopia's "Verdun," slept in the morning hours of today, Mussolini's airplanes bombed the city, the government announcement said, as a prelude to what might prove one of the most bloody wars in the history of the dark continent of Africa.

Women, Children Killed.

Word that numbers of women and children non-combatants were killed and injured horrified the King of Kings, who dispatched his protest to the league immediately.

The conquering Lion of Judah was reported to have sent four regiments of 50,000 soldiers to Addis Ababa to meet an eventual Italian attack near Mussa Ali, where the Ethiopian government said it had established that Italian troops already had penetrated.

The emperor's proclamation was (AP)—It was all a mistake about Herman, and the boys at Texas Christian University who had named their horned frog mascot "Hermania" after finding nine baby frogs in the pen have apologized.

Freshmen pranksters admitted putting the young frogs in the pen, and Herman's guardians have resolved only a veterinarian's certificate will persuade them to change his name again to one more suitable for a wife and mother.

SHOOTING MARKS MILK STRIKE IN WISCONSIN AREA

Widespread Picketing and Milk Dumping in Various Sectors

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—One shooting, widespread picketing and milk dumping increased concern over Chicago's supply as independent farmers in Illinois and Wisconsin renewed attempts today to prevent truck shipments to dairies.

Pickets increased on virtually all highways through McHenry and Kane counties in Illinois and Walworth and Kenosha counties in Wisconsin.

The shooting occurred near Kenosha when two farm boys reported they were fired on by a driver of a milk truck whom they tried to stop. It was said five shots were fired.

Earl Campbell, 22, was under arrest at Woodstock, Ill., for leading a gang of pickets who assaulted a deputy sheriff and dumped a truckload of milk.

In Unmarked Boxes

Some of the milk is being shipped in unmarked box cars to avoid the vigilance of pickets stationed at railroad yards.

How much of Chicago's milk supply was shut off could not be definitely determined. Estimates ranged from 15 per cent by the dealers to 45 per cent by Fred R. Wolf, president of the United Farmers of Illinois, the organization which called the strike Monday.

The 15,000 farmers are protesting against the recent action of the Pure Milk Association in signing an agreement with the dealers which fixed a price of $1.75 a hundred pounds for milk sold by a farmer member. The independent farmers are demanding a flat price of $2.50 a hundred pounds.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, said he may meet with representatives of the dealers and strikers today.

The picket lines of the "strike" moved closer to the city today in a violent prelude to two "peace" conferences.

Two Conferences Open

A truck load of bottled milk was for suburban Berwyn and Cicero from the Elgin Homes Dairy Company, Inc., of Elgin, was dumped and 1440 bottles smashed on the highway in Lake street, near York Road, Cook county, just west of Chicago.

While the strikers dumped milk and turned back trucks from northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin, two conferences opened in the city.

At the invitation of Dr. Bundesen, milk dealers met in his office to discuss the situation. Bundesen said he had also invited representatives of the strikers, this was denied at strike headquarters in Elgin.

A special meeting of the board of directors of the Pure Milk Association, producers organization that supplies 95 per cent of the Chicago

WIFE OF DIXON MAN EMULATED CARRIE NATION

Tavern Glassware was Broken by an Irate Woman Late Tuesday

The shades of Carrie Nation hovered over a First street tavern Tuesday afternoon for a brief period and glassware of many kinds were shattered. Both empty and full containers collapsed in the short time that the hurling took place and before the woman could be restrained from continuing her assault upon the wares of the thirst quenching emporium.

When she was induced to leave the tavern, she directed her course straight to the police station where she notified Chief of Police J. D. VanBibber of her acts, and took up her position of waiting until the proprietor of the tavern might find time to come to the station and file a formal complaint. This part of her mission was in vain as no complaint was made after the broken glassware had been swept up and the contents of many bottles of liquor, wine and gin mopped up. The woman even invited newspaper publicity in her actions.

Friend Wife Enters.

It appeared that she objected to her husband's practice of taking his pay checks to the tavern to be cashed and Tuesday afternoon selected a vantage point where she could watch the entrances. Her wait was short, as she soon observed her husband walk into the tavern and direct to the bar. He was said to have ordered gin with a beer wash and his order was sitting on the bar when friend wife entered. He never tasted his order, however, as she swept the glasses and their contents from in front of the surprised husband, hurling them at the many fancy labeled bottles of assorted wines and liquors on the back bar.

Empty glasses on the bar disappeared with dispatch as broken glasses and bottles fell to the floor. The bartender and other patrons were as much surprised as was friend husband when to his astonishment, he recognized his wife hurling empty glasses with deadly aim. The woman was finally prevailed upon to leave the tavern, which she did, after serv-

Six Cattle Killed by Streamliner at Polo Wednes. A. M.

(Telegraph Special Service)

Polo, Oct. 3.—Six head of cattle in the Bert Bellows herd are dead as a result of being run down by passenger train, No. 23, the Zephyr, on the Burlington road. It is reported that Bellows started to drive the cattle over the tracks but the six animals left the crossing and started down the right of way. Four were killed instantly, while the other two were so badly injured that they had to be destroyed.

PUBLIC CHARITY COLD AND COSTLY SAID SMITH

Democratic Leader is the Speaker at Catholic Welfare Meet

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Public charity bore Alfred E. Smith's brands of "cold" and "costly" today.

He pleaded for greater support of Catholic welfare agencies that they might take over the care of a larger portion of the needy.

His address, delivered before 3,000 persons at the state armory last night, marked the close of the 25th annual national conference of Catholic charities.

"Public charity is cold" he asserted. "It is administered in a business like, perfunctory way. It is very costly."

"Public money will never take care of our asylums, our Catholic hospitals, family cases that need assistance in other than financial ways, our homes for the aged and infirm. That is the work of the church and it cannot be performed intelligently by any body of public officials."

Taxes On Everybody

Smith warned that, should the government attempt to cover the whole field, "taxation would be such a burden it would have to pass back to the very people we are trying to benefit."

"Taxes are paid by everybody. Ordinary people may not feel the taxes but they are going to foot the bill when the right time comes. Why, even men on relief pay taxes out of the money the government pays them for relief. Nobody escapes the tax gatherer."

Monsignor Fulton Sheen of Catholic University asserted that moral civilization was imperiled. He struck out at Mexico and Russia in particular in contending, "our ills are not merely political and economic but moral."

Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois sat beside Smith at the banquet table.

Illinois Supreme Court Refuses to Consider Appeal of Peoria's Rapist-Slayer, Sentenced to Die

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Illinois Supreme Court today refused to consider the appeal of Gerald Thompson of Peoria, sentenced to be electrocuted October 15 for the murder of a girl.

The court denied a motion by Ren Thurman, Thompson's attorney, that a request for a writ of error be made a writ of superseas. This blocked efforts to get the conviction reviewed before the execution date.

Thompson was sentenced to death for the slaying of Mildred Hallmark, Peoria cafeteria hostess, on the morning of June 17.

Bridges Better Than Root in Bitter Cold at Navin Fld. Detroit

Tigers Rout "Pappy" in First Inning of Day's Game

BULLETIN

The Detroit Tigers evened the world series by defeating the Chicago Cubs 8 to 3 in the second game today in bitter cold at Navin Field, Detroit.

Navin Field, Detroit, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Belting with new found savagery, the Detroit Tigers hammered Charlie Root out of the box with a four run first inning rally, then disposed of the Lefty Henshaw with a three run spurge in the fourth to lead the Chicago Cubs, handcuffed by Tommy Bridges fine pitching under bitter cold conditions, 8 to 3 at the end of eight innings of the second world series game today.

Hank Greenberg's homer deep into the left field stands on one on disposed of Root as a crowd of 47,547 shivered in the stands. Henshaw, who relieved Root and escaped further scoring until the fourth, lost his control then, hit Mary Owen with a pitched ball, walked Jo Jo White and Mickey Cochrane, and was touched for singles by Bridges and Charley Gehring, allowing three runs, before Fabian Kowalik, a right hander, took over with two out and two on.

It was the coldest world series in more than 10 years and the pitchers had to blow on their hands between every pitch to warm them. Umpires held their ears as a cold wind whipped across the field, blowing dust in everyone's eyes and making fly balls sail in wierd directions.

Henshaw, his hands stiff, walked four men in addition to hitting one, and Bridges, having the same trouble, passed two. His curve ball broke beautifully, though, in the pinches, and the Cubs were helpless before his speed. Gabby Hartnett's single to center with two out in the fourth was the only other hit, besides that of Jurgas, made off Bridges in the first five innings.

First Inning

Cubs—Augie Galan opened the second game with a walk after five pitchers. Herman hit to a double play, Bridges to Rogell to Greenberg. Lindstrom fanned.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Detroit—White singled to short left, scoring on Cochrane's double down the right field line. Gehring singled to center, scoring Cochrane, and came home himself a minute later when Hank Greenberg smashed a home run into the left field stands. Root was taken out and Roy Henshaw, diminutive left-hander, went into the box for the Cubs. Goslin walked, but was doubled as Fox lined to Herman. Herman to Cavarretta. Rogell grounded out, Henshaw to Cavarretta.

Four runs, four hits, no errors, none left.

Second Inning

Cubs—Hartnett bounced out. Gehring to Greenberg. Demaree was out on a grounder over the same route. Cavarretta grounded, Greenberg to Bridges.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Detroit—Owen fanned. Bridges grounded out, Hack to Cavarretta. White walked on four straight. Cochrane flied to Galan.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Third Inning

Cubs—Hack walked, running the count to three and two without taking his bat from his shoulder. Jurgas flied to Fox. Henshaw flied to Goslin in short center. Galan lined to White.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Detroit—Gehring walked, but was out on a double play when Greenberg grounded, Jurgas to Herman to Cavarretta. Goslin flied to Galan in left center.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Fourth Inning

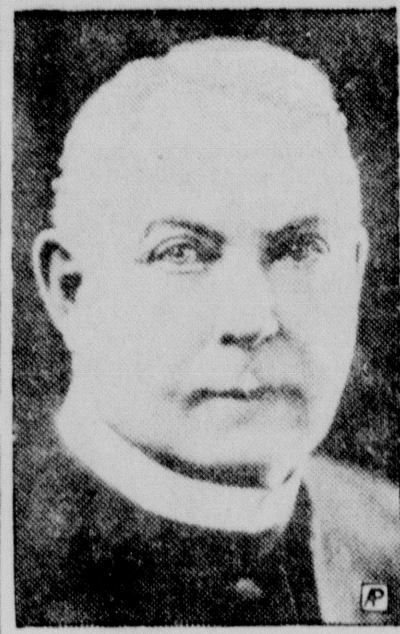

Cubs—Herman struck out. Lindstrom flied to Gehring in short center. Hartnett singled through center, the first hit off Bridges. Demaree flied to White.

No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Detroit—Fox popped a fly to Hack. Rogell fanned. Owen was

Bishop is Dead

RT. REV. THOS. F. GAILOR

Oldest bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church in this country and Chancellor of the University of the South, who died in Seawane, Tenn., early today. He was 79 years old.

Death resulted from a stomach disorder.

The eminent cleric recently celebrated both his birthday and the 55th anniversary of his ordination.

For the last three or four years he had been subject to attacks of indigestion but had remained active both in his duties at the university and as bishop of the Diocese of Tennessee. He traveled frequently over the state, visiting the parishes in his charge.

When Bishop Gailor became gravely ill several days ago, his family gathered at the summer home here. His permanent residence was in Memphis.

One of his daughters, Mrs. Richard Cleveland, daughter-in-law of former President Grover Cleveland, came from her home in Baltimore. Miss Charlotte Gailor, his other daughter, made her home with her father. His only son is Frank Hoyt Gailor, trustee of Shelby county, (Memphis).

ITALIANS DENY BOMBING VILLAGES IN AFRICA

Il Duce Admits Troops Have Advanced Into Haile's Empire

(Copyright, 1935, By The United Press)

Rome, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Italian troops marched into Ethiopia today in reply to the general mobilization proclaimed by Emperor Haile Selassie.

The troops, it was announced officially, "have occupied some advanced positions beyond our lines."

An official communique said the advance was a defensive movement against a "a direct and immediate menace."

Il Duce's Fascist legions may have penetrated Ethiopian country while their chief spoke to 20,000, 0000 blackshirts at home, assembled yesterday in a great, one-day test mobilization.

Officials did not indicate when the forward movement started, merely giving out the communique and denying charges by Haile Selassie in a telegram to the League of Nations of bombardments of Ethiopian villages by Italian airplanes.

Answer to Haile

"The action started as a consequence of Ethiopia's imperial call to arms, the official communique said, and the high command in Eritrea "received orders to act accordingly."

"Negus's telegram to the league speaking of bombardment of villages causing casualties among women, children and aged is an

Many Demonstrations

Demonstrations were reported from widely scattered cities. Fifty Italian conscripts were mobbed at Toulouse, France. The Italian consulate at Sao Paulo, Brazil, was stoned.

Italy was expected to go before the council of the League of Nations with the stand that Italy was fighting a purely defensive battle against Ethiopia, claiming her troops were attacked by the tribesmen.

Emperor Haile Selassie threw thousands of men toward the Eritrean border, from which Italian troops were advancing.

He called all the fighters of Ethiopia to go to the defense of their country, and it was reported that Italian bombing planes had dropped missiles on Addis Ababa—the historical scene of the great Italian defeat in 1896.

Italy Makes Denial

The King of Kings charged women and children were killed not only at Addis Ababa but at Adigrat. The bombing reports were denied by Italy.

Italy protested the mobilization to the League, ordered its high command to take "defensive measures," and announced the advance of Italian soldiers "beyond the lines."

The League council was officially convened for an emergency session Saturday morning. The assembly, it was said, may also meet in extraordinary session.

The situation was viewed with alarm by Great Britain. Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations affairs, started for Geneva. He was instructed by the British cabinet to throw the whole weight of British influence behind League efforts to stop, or at least isolate, the conflict.

The French government, reportedly assured by Premier Mussolini's promise that war in East Africa would not mean a European war, was prepared to confer further with

BOMBING HELD WAR DECLARATION BY ITALY

Marks Beginning of Long-Fears East African Conflict

BULLETIN

London, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Addis Ababa correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph agency reported today that 1,700 persons had been killed and wounded in an Italian air bombardment of Addis Ababa.

BULLETIN

London, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A Reuters (British) news agency dispatch from Addis Ababa said today that Italian troops advancing toward Agame between Addis Ababa and Adigrat had been defeated.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Official Ethiopian reports of an Italian bombing raid into Ethiopia today signaled, in the opinion of authorities of the League of Nations, the long-feared beginning of war in East Africa.

A British source characterized the alleged bombing as the "declaration of war—the only declaration there will be."

Although Italy officially denied the bombing, it also announced that Italian troops had moved into "advanced positions beyond our lines."

Reports of fighting poured into Addis Ababa. The wild Danakil tribes were said to have engaged the advancing Italians in Tigre province.

There were reports of fighting in Gaden province.

Red Cross Nurses Killed

Emperor Haile Selassie was quoted as saying Red Cross nurses had been killed and wounded at Addis Ababa.

The Italian minister in Addis Ababa told The Associated Press that he knew nothing of the bombing and that, furthermore, he had received no instructions from Premier Mussolini as to what he was to do next.

The Addis Ababa correspondent of the newspaper Paris Soir reported that Premier Mussolini's sons, Bruno and Vittorio, were among the pilots of the bombing squadron.

Crowds milled in Downing street, London, talking only of the war and speculating as to whether Great Britain would be drawn into it.

"WRONG NUMBER."
By Joseph Fort Newton.
In an English town, so a London paper reports, a ballot was taken by the telephone operators who were asked to choose the most perfect telephone subscriber—the one who never failed to be kind.
The woman who won the election by her unflinching courtesy and unforgetting kindness, despite all irritating annoyances, ought to be proud of her title. One can hardly imagine an honor more worth winning.
We are always passing judgment, favorable or otherwise—chiefly otherwise—on various classes of public servants or private employees. We too often forget that they are also passing judgment upon us.

"When a man is a Christian even his cat and his dog know it," said wise old Dr. Johnson; and we may add, what the good doctor would not admit, that he himself did not fail in that most acid of all tests.

How many of us would pass that test—or what ought to be a far easier test, the verdict as to whether we are ladies and gentlemen; a verdict rendered by men and women who served us in the daily round?

To be a human cog in a great machine—a ticket-seller, a waiter, a telephone operator; to be tired or ill or troubled; to know that something has gone wrong, to wait with strained nerves for the inevitable sharp reproof, and to hear a word of kind and patient courtesy!

What a relief—it must make all life seem brighter and all people nicer for the rest of the day! Alas, it must mean, in the long run, fewer "wrong numbers" for everyone, and a better spirit besides.

A great poet speaks of "that best portion of a good man's life, the little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love." Ah, but they are not remembered by those to whom they are given!

Life gets into all sorts of tangles—wrong numbers, wrong addresses, and the like. But if we have a right spirit it does not so much matter—we can untie the knots, iron out the kinks, and put it right.

How much happier the world would be, how much gentler and kinder, if all of us could pass the test the English woman passed! (Copyright, 1935, by United Syndicate, Inc.)

Eighty Present at Wesleyan Missionary Meet at Peek Home

Tuesday evening Peek Home was the scene of a happy gathering when about eighty members and friends of the Wesleyan Missionary Society of the Methodist church met there for their October meeting. Miss Brandes, Supt. of the Home led the devotional service.

After the business meeting conducted by the president, Mrs. A. N. Boyd, the following program was enjoyed.

Songs—Peek girls
Vocal duet—Janet and Joyce Stansell
Piano solo—Alice Hintz
The Missionary Skit, giving much information about the history and work of the Home Missionary Society was given by Mr. and Mrs. Hardy.

Mrs. Leydig gave an interesting stereopticon lecture "Work carried on by our Home Missionary Society." She was assisted by Miss Estella Anderson.

Following the program the children enjoyed games in the playroom while the guests explored rooms and corridors of this Home where over thirty children are being cared for.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Wadsworth and her committee. The president and members of Mrs. Wadsworth and her committee.

The announcement of the next meeting was very cleverly given by the "Sandwich Man."

Chill ingredients. Combine and serve in crisp lettuce cups.
Remember slow oven for custard baking.

Miss Hubbard 82 Years Old Sunday
Miss Amy Hubbard of Nelson township was a Dixon visitor yesterday. Last Sunday she celebrated her 82nd birthday and she is certainly still in full possession of her exceptionally remarkable faculties.

Miss Hubbard and her brother, William live on a farm bordering the south bank of Rock river a few miles below this city. They live in the house their father built in 1860. Their farm of 136 acres was taken up as a homestead in 1837, lacking but a couple of years of a century ago, by their father, Charles Frederick Hubbard who came here as a young man from New York City. These highly respected Lee County pioneers have carried on the traditions of a cultured and aristocratic family (one ancestor was a major in General Washington's army) and their many friends wish them many more years of health and happiness.

Meeting Presbyterian Auxiliary Tuesday
The Presbyterian Women's Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. W. C. Durkes, Tuesday evening.

Fifty-five members and guests enjoyed the program, arranged by the hostess, which included a book review given by Mrs. J. N. Weiss. Mrs. Weiss is very capable and charming, and everyone greatly enjoyed her review on the interesting book, "Green Light," by Lloyd C. Douglas.

At the close of the meeting the committee served very tasty refreshments.

WILL VISIT FRIENDS IN MINNEAPOLIS
Mrs. Frank Philpott will leave the 14th of October for a visit with friends in Minneapolis.

Home Bureau Training School Monday M. E. Church
On Monday afternoon a training school for Home Bureau officers was held in the Methodist church in Dixon with forty members present.

Mrs. Carl Ackert, the county chairman spoke to the group of a better cooperative spirit between the units by this organization meeting.

Mrs. Ackert, county chairman, met with the unit chairman, Mrs. Raymond Degner; and Mrs. Wm. Hoyle met with the unit vice chairman, Mrs. Glenn Pfoutz met with the unit secretaries and Mrs. Ellis Kugler met with the unit treasurers. Mrs. Alton Conderman met with major project leaders, and Mrs. Ralph Long met with recreation leaders, and Mrs. Hazel Miller met with the publicity secretaries. Each group discussed various phases of their work. Mrs. Syverud made a few announcements as follows: The executive board will meet with Mrs. Raymond Degner in Lee Center Monday, Oct. 7th, with a picnic dinner at noon. Miss Brooks will hold open meetings at Amboy, Oct. 9th at the Methodist church, at 2 o'clock and on Oct. 10th at 2 o'clock at the Methodist church in Dixon.

Miss Gray will hold an open meeting in Amboy, Oct. 18th, at the Amboy Township school.

At the close of the meeting all favored this slogan, "Make the Best Organization Better."

Beautiful Wedding At St. Patrick's Church in Dixon
A beautiful wedding was solemnized at St. Patrick's church in Dixon Monday morning at 9 o'clock, with Reverend Father T. G. Green officiating at nuptial mass. At this time Miss Sally Mae Cox of Springfield, and George Vaessen of Sublette were united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The bride wore a lovely gown of red chiffon velvet with a hat matching her costume, with accessories, gloves, prayer book, etc., in white. She carried an arm bouquet of Talsman roses. Her maid of honor, Miss Rosanna Kilday of Polo wore a charming gown of navy blue crepe and a blue hat. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Leonard B. Vaessen, the groom's brother, was the best man.

After the wedding breakfast was enjoyed and Mr. and Mrs. Vaessen left on a wedding trip from which they will return the latter part of the week. Mr. Vaessen owns a garage in Sublette, and they expect to make their home in that city. Many friends join in extending best wishes to the young couple for happiness.

Greenfield-Edgington Wedding in Dixon
At the Presbyterian parsonage in Dixon on Saturday evening occurred the marriage of Miss Alice Edgington of Franklin Grove to Herman Greenfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Greenfield, the ceremony being performed by Dr. J. Franklin Young, pastor of the Dixon Presbyterian church. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Greenfield, of Dixon.

The bride wore a dress of green crepe with white accessories. She graduated from the Franklin Grove high school with the class of 1932, and Mr. Greenfield also attended Franklin Grove high school. Many friends extend best wishes to them.

Lone Survivor of Pinkstaff Sisters Seriously Ill

Lawrenceville, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)

Death has claimed two more of the Pinkstaff sisters and focused attention on the single survivor of four women who kept until death a 60-year-old covenant that they would not marry.

The survivor—Mary Ann Pinkstaff, 73—is ill with pneumonia which recently took the lives of Clara Ann, 70, and Susie Ann, 86. Martha Ann died 40 years ago.

For the last quarter century Mary Ann, Clara Ann and Susie Ann, operated their 180-acre farm on the banks of the Wabash river. The farm had belonged to their father, and before that to his sire. No outside help was employed. Gruelling outdoor farm labor indirectly led to the recent deaths and illness.

Work in a hay field on a hot September day brought an exhaustion. Heavy colds followed; pneumonia quickly developed.

Had Many Suitors.
The no-marriage pledge was not taken through dearth of suitors. There were many. Susie Ann "kept company" with the same man for many years but refused to break the vow.

In recent years, the sisters clung to the garb of the nineties. High top shoes, long flowing skirts, often of solid black but occasionally of flowered gingham or calico, stiff, starched bonnets, were their attire.

Strict accounting was kept of the profits from the farm and after each sale the three gathered around the fire and divided equally. Susie Ann was the manager. Mary Ann was the housekeeper and doer of chores and Clara Ann was in charge of the farm work.

But when major harvest work came, all three went to the fields.

"Thrill" Watchword.
Thrill was the watchword of the German Pinkstaff "girls"—as they were known in Lawrence county—and neighbors talk of buried wealth, perhaps in gold. Their bank accounts were small.

Each spinster took her purse on shopping trips. It was sewed in a pocket in the first undershirt—each always wore several.

For 65 years the sisters lived in the same five-room frame farm house. In 1929 they bought a motor car. Clara Ann finally learned to drive, but for the most part kept to backroads. Main highways were too hazardous.

Safe, Simple Exercises Are the Best

By ALICIA HART
NEA Service Staff Writer

The woman who wants to reduce never should map out a rigid diet without first consulting her doctor. She must not go in for strenuous intricate exercises, intended originally for acrobats, unless she does them under the careful supervision of an experienced teacher.

She ought not to fool herself by imagining that extra pounds, accumulated over a period of months—or even years—can be taken off within a few weeks. In other words, good judgment should be the keynote of any diet-minded woman's routine.

After you have received your doctor's permission to omit certain foods from your diet, decide at once what type of exercises you will have to do to reduce specific spots on your body. If your measurements suit you, except about the waistline, concentrate on waistline exercises. However do not try bending and stretching varieties which are so difficult that you can't learn to do them correctly.

This doesn't mean that only simple exercises are recommended. Practice intricate ones, of course, but don't expect to do them perfectly the first few days. It's much better to remain overweight than to risk injuring ligaments or bones.

Back bends, for instance, never should be tried unless you have someone standing close by to support your back. Standing with feet wide apart, slowly force your body backward until hands touch the floor rather close to your heels. This is simple for a dancer or an exercise teacher, but the average woman ought to have support across the middle of her back until she learns how to balance her weight perfectly.

Spits of various kinds are other types of exercise that should not be attempted unless you have someone to guide you and hold you up in case you start to fall. Once you have mastered the technique, they are especially good for legs, hips, and waistline.

Georgia is now the only state in the Union not having a state highway patrol system.

Miss Utley Honored at Party in Sterling Last Eve

Last evening Mrs. Clarence Sheldon of Sterling, the former Mary Kennedy of Dixon, delightfully entertained at a 6:30 dinner and bride honoring her friend, Miss Harriet Utley of Dixon whose marriage to John Frank Kennedy of Sterling will take place Oct. 19th. A miscellaneous shower was also a feature of the happy evening. Miss Utley receiving a number of lovely gifts for the home to be.

Colorful autumn flowers graced the rooms and the dining table, where an elegantly appointed dinner was served, to the eighteen guests, who were from both Sterling and Dixon.

At bridge Miss Bea Littorf was awarded the favor for high honors; Miss Dorothy Hoffman receiving the second favor and Miss Pauline Stevens the consolation favor.

Attending the party from Dixon were Mrs. Elizabeth S. Utley, mother of the bride-elect; Mrs. J. H. Kennedy, mother of Mrs. Sheldon, and Miss Rachel Kennedy, her sister, Miss Dorothy Hoffman, Miss Verna Suter and Miss Marion Duffy.

Surprise Birthday Party Was Enjoyable Affair

On Tuesday evening about 6 o'clock cars streamed into the yard at the home of Mrs. Mabel Miller, with horns blowing and shouts of "happy birthday." Her preparations for supper were put aside and soon the table was groaning with good things for the feast. In the center of the table was a large birthday cake, decorated by her daughter, Thelma Good. After the birthday supper games and music were enjoyed. At a late hour the guests departed leaving Mrs. Miller many nice gifts with the best wishes of all present.

The affair was planned and carried out by Mrs. Mabel Miller.

IS COALITION POSSIBLE?

When the country was engaged in fighting the war of the Rebellion, the republican national convention of 1864 nominated Andrew Johnson, Tennessee, for vice president on the ticket with President Lincoln. This was in recognition of the "war democrats" who were for preservation of the Union. This coalition was called the national union ticket. Johnson had been military governor of Tennessee under appointment by Lincoln and his service was regarded as meritorious. Six weeks after his inauguration as vice president he succeeded to the presidency.

The country now is engaged in a great controversy involving preservation of the republican form of government as against socialistic dictatorship. How best to preserve our government is a question of political procedure. Some, probably many, will have first in their minds the preservation of political parties, but in our opinion preservation of the republican form of government comes first. If it can be preserved by election of a republican president and vice president, that should be done. If it can be preserved by republicans following the precedent set by their party in attempting to preserve the Union in 1864, nomination of a democrat for vice president, that should be done. Our government now depends upon unity of those who are willing to make sacrifices of party for country.

In one of his daily articles Frank R. Kent of the Baltimore Sun says that among the democrats bitter against President Roosevelt and his socialistic policies are Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis, Albert C. Ritchie, Senator Carter Glass, Senator Harry F. Byrd, Senator Millard F. Tydings, Senator Thomas Gore, former Senator James A. Reed, Lewis W. Douglas, resigned director of the budget, former Governor Ely of Massachusetts, former Governor Murray of Oklahoma.

"By most of these men Mr. Roosevelt is not considered a democrat," says Mr. Kent. "His policies are regarded as socialistic, dangerous, illegal, unsound, in violation of the democratic platform pledges and contrary to basic democratic doctrine."

Repudiation of the democratic platform and abandonment of the basic democratic doctrine is a matter of record. The rest may be a matter of opinion in large part, but the opinion of that group of democrats is a matter of national importance.

Reviewing the political situation as it relates to the presidential election of 1936 Mr. Kent says:

"A great horde of democratic voters, disgusted with the New Deal, shocked by the Roosevelt disregard of the constitution and alarmed by his radical tendencies, can not bring themselves to vote for him. These anti-New Deal democrats have three alternatives: They can stay at home and not vote; they can organize a constitutional democratic party of their own and put up a candidate, or they can vote the republican ticket. Whichever they choose, they insure republican success. There may be a flaw in the argument and the political scenery may shift again before election. It is, however, sufficiently plausible now to make the nomination of a first class man by the republicans of real concern to every decent citizen."

Mr. Kent long has been the political authority of the Baltimore Sun. The Sun long has been the leading spokesman for the democratic party, situated as it is near the national capital and at the Mason and Dixon line.

On the other hand there are thousands of republicans who gladly would vote for Al Smith if by so voting they could preserve the republican form of government, for which he stands. But Roosevelt will have the machinery of the democratic party and the preservation of our government must be through the agency of the republican convention, either by a republican victory or by concession to the constitutionalist democrats by giving them one place on the ticket.

It is going to take all the ingenuity and support of republicans and constitutional democrats to overcome the 5 billions made available to the president as a campaign fund by a spineless congress.

IT'S JAPAN'S TURN

The annual grand maneuvers of the Japanese navy are under way now, and the fleet is going through strategic exercises somewhere in the northwest Pacific in the vicinity of the Kurile islands.

A few weeks ago the United States performed its exercises in the Pacific, and the pacifists screamed to high heaven about it. Now the Japanese fleet is doing just what our own fleet did—and just as no one in the United States is in the least worried by this Japanese action, it seems fair to assume that the action of our own fleet caused no worry on the other side of the Pacific.

As a matter of fact, a good deal of fuss was made over nothing. Our fleet practiced the maneuvers it would use in case of war with Japan; now the Japanese fleet is practicing the maneuvers it would use in case of a war with us—and who, on either side of the water, has been harmed?

If you take the government out of all lines of business, abolish all semblance of the NRA, and stop the policies of the AAA, you'll take one-half of the people off the relief rolls of America within 60 days.—Gov. Eugene Talmadge, Georgia.

The day of the old battle ax in the city's educational system is definitely past. However, teachers need not be Follies beauties, but they must be pretty.—W. H. Ankenbrand, Rockford, Ill., school superintendent.

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

Poor Duncy was a startled lad when his balloon broke. "That's too bad," said Scouty. "How do you suppose your tough luck came about?"

"The rest of us have ours, you see, and they're as big as they can be. Your red one was blown up too big for its own good, no doubt."

"Oh yeah?" Duncy promptly said. "I think it was a trick, instead. Come on, confest! Who used a pin. I think it is a shame!"

Of course no Tiny said a word. And then the farmer's voice was heard. "Nobody used a pin, son, but I am the one to blame."

"As your balloon sailed round in air, I thought I'd give you quite a scare. I touched it with my cigar. To all the rest 'twas fun. "You were a funny sight to see, but now I'm sorry as can be. If you'll forgive me, lad, I'll gladly buy another one."

"I'd rather have an ice cream cone," the lad replied. "All of my own." Instead of buying just one, though, the farmer purchased six. The Tinies ate them in delight.

And everything was quite all right. The farmer smiled and said, "I'll pull no more expensive tricks."

Then to the Tiny girls a man said, "Oh, please help me, if you can. I need a couple judges over at the jelly booth."

"There's lots of jelly you must taste." Right to the booth the two girls raced. "Oh, this is fine," said Goldy, "cause I have a big sweet tooth."

The man then lifted them up to the counter. "Now, it's up to you," said he, to tell me which jam seems to taste the very best."

"Oh, my, must all that jam be tried? You girls are lucky," Duncy cried. "When you have had your tastes, tell me, and I will eat the rest."

(The girls are rewarded for being judges, in the next story.)

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

ISAIAH PORTRAYS THE SUFFERING SERVANT.
Text: Isaiah 53:1-12.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Oct. 6.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of Advance.

The studies of representative men and women of the Bible during the third quarter have taken characters from the Old Testament and from the New. In the fourth quarter we turn from a succession of New Testament studies back to the Old Testament. The personalities of these lessons are the older prophets and leaders of Judah, from Isaiah to Malachi. The first lesson of the quarter presents the suffering servant in the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah—a chapter that almost unerringly has been taken as prophetic of Christ, though there can be little doubt that it had primary reference to a suffering servant nearer to the times in which the prophet wrote.

It is commonly believed by New Testament scholars that the later chapters of Isaiah are by another hand than the early chapters, and come out of a later period, when Israel had undergone the tragedy of exile and suffering in Babylon.

In the conception of the prophet the nation was not only expiating its own sins, but was bearing the burden of sin in the process of human redemption, with which we have become so familiar in the New Testament story of the mission and death of Jesus.

If one pictured the problem of the prophet in the crisis that Israel was facing, he can understand something of the source and reality of the noble, religious ideas of this lesson and of the accompanying chapters in the latter part of the Book of Isaiah.

Here was a people professing to be the chosen people of God, to whom there had been great promises and whose literature was full of sublime triumphs and the evidences of divine leadership. The conception of a glorious kingdom in which Israel should lead and share was enshrined in that history.

But how could these promises and purposes of God concerning Israel be fulfilled in a nation that had been blasted by war, torn up by the roots and taken off in exile to a far and unfriendly country? Was there no justice and no hope as men looked up in the light of the spiritual history of the nation?

This problem the prophet faced with insight and daring. He saw that, while the innocent suffer with the guilty, there is redemptive power in the sufferings of the innocent.

The way of redemption and progress lies through suffering and sacrifice. There is no effort to explain why this is so, but the prophet insists that even in exile a nation called of God may fulfill its destiny and give its message and leadership to the world.

How gloriously has that faith and hope been fulfilled in history. The Jews in many lands are still in exile or in excommunication; yet from this race with its prophets, and its saints, and its Savior have come the richest and noblest ideals and the truest visions of the redeemed society.

The GOLDEN FEATHER

CHAPTER II

AS Bobby pushed his chair back, they realized that two men had come up to their table. One of them was Art Lanning, the proprietor of the Golden Feather night club. He wore a dinner jacket and dazlingly sleek black hair brushed back from a pale forehead and he seemed just a little bit too affable and suave to be entirely reliable; but then, Jean told herself, he must be all right, for hadn't her own boss introduced him to her?

Lanning's companion, she realized with a little startled thrill, was the good-looking young man who had been so noticeably watching her from his table on the other side of the room. He was tall, and broad shouldered, and although he wore his tuxedo as if he were used to it, he seemed to have an out doors air about him, as if he belonged on the western plains some where instead of in this stuffy, overcrowded night club. Perhaps it was his hair that did it. It was sandy, and it refused to lie down in the well trained manner of Lanning's; instead, a long forelock drooped down over his forehead, making him look like a cowboy who had got used to the city but who, nevertheless, intended to go back to the range some day.

Lanning was smiling his stereotyped smile—the smile of a man who is everybody's friend but who watches all the angles, just the same. He put his hands on the table and leaned his big bulk over them.

"You don't mind if I introduce an old friend of mine, do you?" he said. "This is Sandy Harkins—Sandy from the hair and Harkins from the family. Sandy, this charming young lady is Miss Jean Dunn, and the lucky man with her is Bobby Wallace."

Bobby got up and stuck out his hand. Harkins extended a large, well-manicured hand and gave him a firm grip and a friendly smile. Then he turned back to Jean, to whom he had bowed while Bobby was getting out of his chair, and said, "We're not butting in, are we?"

They murmured polite denials. "Well," said Sandy, "you know how it is. Here I am, a stranger in this town, sitting here wishing I could just have one dance before I leave, and not knowing a soul to dance with. And then my friend Art comes up, and I see him say hello to you folks as he passes your table, and so I get up my nerve and I think, 'Now maybe if Art takes me over and introduces me to those people, I could get that one dance—just one dance.'"

He grinned disarmingly, as if to say, "Shucks, I'm just a friendly guy from the country, and nobody gets mad at me." Then he turned to Bobby and said, "Would you object if I asked your young lady for just one little dance?"

His voice sounded vaguely southern, or western, or something, Jean thought. It was lazy and pleasant, and it made you like him. Even Bobby seemed to be taken with him.

"Not at all," said Bobby, grinning back at him.

Sandy Harkins turned to her again. "Lady, I need a dance awful bad," he said. "I'll bring you back

Sandy was a good dancer. He asked, "I didn't bother you, did I, earlier, staring at you?"

safe and sound to your boy friend as soon as the music stops."

"Then," said Jean, "wouldn't better start, because this number's going to be over in another minute."

SHE got up, slipped into his arm, and they glided away as smoothly as was possible, considering the crowded state of the dance floor. He was a good dancer, she discovered, moving with the effortless grace of the horn athlete; for a moment he was silent, as he maneuvered her through the crowd. Presently he looked down and grinned.

"I didn't bother you, did I, earlier, staring at you?" he asked. "Were you staring? I didn't notice."

"No? Baby, don't tell papa lies. Anyhow, I didn't mean to bother you, and I hoped you wouldn't be mad. But how could I help looking at the prettiest girl in the place?"

This was pretty obvious, thought Jean, still, she admitted, it was rather pleasant. She made some flippant reply, and he went on talking in an easy, lazy drawl. She learned that he was in this city of Dover temporarily, that he had no idea how soon he would leave, that he was in some sort of business—she wasn't quite clear just what—that kept him traveling about a great deal, and that he had no hesitation whatever in declaring that she, Jean Dunn, was tops. She grew gay and flippant in response to his mood, and before long she discovered that she was enjoying this dance very much indeed; so much so that she felt a genuine pang of regret when the music finally stopped.

"Would you just faint and fall in it if I should call you up some day?" he asked, as they started back to the table.

"No," she said slowly, "but you don't know my phone number."

"Don't worry about that, baby. What it takes to find out phone numbers grows on me. Would you hang up on me?"

She ought to tell him not to call; she knew that as well as she knew her own name. But what was the harm? A telephone call, after all—and besides, he was nice-looking, and he had an amusing way of talking. She found herself saying, "Try and see."

They got back to the table, and Harkins and Lanning left them, after a few moments of inconsequential talk. Bobby followed them with his eyes as they walked away. "Seems like a nice chap, doesn't he?" he asked.

Good old Bobby! thought Jean. He's probably jealous as can be, inside, but he's too nice to show it. And she had a sudden revulsion of feeling, in which she looked on Bobby with real tenderness, and told herself that she would marry him as soon as—well, as soon as—well, some day; and meanwhile, if Mr. Harkins did call her up she would just tell him that she couldn't see him. . . .

"Well, look who's out seeing the sights," said a man's voice. Startled, she looked up. Bobby had sprung to his feet, and was eagerly shaking hands with a quiet-looking, dark-haired man in a neat gray lounge suit; and as the man turned to her she recognized him and said, "Why, Larry Glenn—where'd you come from?"

LARRY GLENN shook hands with her and helped himself to a vacant chair at an adjoining table, which he drew up between her and Bobby. He sat down, leaned his elbows on the table and smiled first at her and then at Bobby. "I guess I'm getting old," he said. "The children seem to be growing up."

Seeing him was almost like going back home. She had not seen him since she and Bobby had been in high school. At one time he had been the unwitting object of her first schoolgirl crush; she had been a high school freshman then, and he had been a person of glamour and romance—the college football star, back in the home town to coach the high school football team. He had been a friend of her father's, and he had often dined in their home—and had looked down on her with an amused and friendly tolerance. Then he had gone east, somewhere, and she had heard that he had become a lawyer, and later had heard that he had some obscure but interesting kind of job with the government. And here he was again, older and soberer now with friendly eyes and a firm chin and an older-brother air toward both of them that somehow made them both feel that if they ever got in any kind of trouble they could go at once to Larry Glenn and be got out of it.

"What're you kids doing up here in Dover, anyway?" he was asking. "Kids!" said Bobby indignantly. "That's swell. We've been out of college exactly one year."

"Bobby's selling autos, and I'm a swlegant stenographer," said Jean.

"She's a bug on earning her own living now, but some day she's going to marry me," said Bobby, ignoring the face she made at him.

Larry Glenn looked from one to the other.

"Well," he said, "I heard a couple of years ago that things were drifting that way—"

"They're not!" said Jean. Then she checked herself and said, "Well—not just now, anyhow."

"They're drifting that way," said Bobby, "but not fast enough."

"There's lots of time," said Larry. He looked at them, fondly in silence, then turned to Jean.

"I got a letter from your dad telling me you were up here," he said. "I promised I'd look you up. No—hastily—not to try to keep an eye on you. Just to say hello, and maybe take you out to dinner once in a great while, if Bobby doesn't object too much."

"I don't object at all, to you," said Bobby. "It's handsome strangers like this Harkins guy that get me worried."

"That," sighed Glenn, "seems to indicate that I'm hopelessly unromantic and aged. And who is this Harkins guy, anyway?"

Rogues Gallery of Fake Stock Dealers

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A "rogues gallery" of 30,000 names has been compiled by the Securities and Exchange Commission to aid it in weeding out fake stock salesmen and promoters.

The list is dotted with the names of "get rich quick" promoters accused of preying upon the investing public back in the boom days with promises of wealth from worthless securities.

David Saperstein, director of the trading and exchange division, said today the list was proving invaluable in the examination of applications for registration from over-the-counter security dealers.

CUBS CLAW TIGERS IN SERIES OPENER

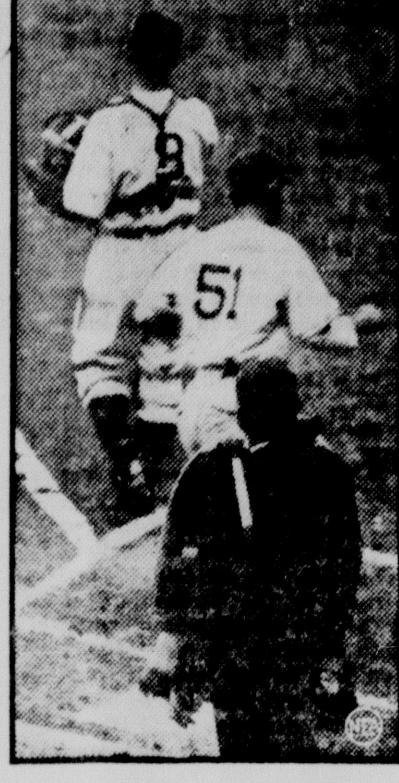

Here's Run That Won, as Galan Moved Around Bases Hit, Boot Put Jurgens on Second.

The run that won the first game of the world series—Cubs, 3; Detroit 0—started on its way here. A slashing liner boomed from the bat of Augie Galan, as Catcher Mickey Cochrane and Umpire George Moriarty stood tensely behind the plate. The ball flashed past Shortstop Rogell as he made a wild lunge—

And the Cubs left fielder and leadoff man, away with the crack of the bat, tore past Hank Greenberg, Tiger first sacker, and Umpire Ernie Quigley, rounded first and started his sprint for second, as the ball rolled into the outfield. Beating the relay from the garden, he pulled up safely at the keystone—

A slow roller oozed down the third base line from Herman's bat. Galan sprinted to third and when Rowe's throw was bad he crossed the plate.

An error in the second inning of the first world series threatened to give Schoolboy Rowe a reputation of the attack of jitters he suffered in the first. After one out, Billy Jurgens, Cub shortstop, singled sharply to left and went to second when Goose Goslin booted the ball. Here's Jurgens safe at the keystone, with Rogell making the play and Umpire Bill McGowan very busy rendering his decision.

Viscioni, Karben and LeHue Among Headline Boxers Luring Crowds

Preliminaries to Draw Much of Interest

Eight Golden Gloves district champions are offering their fists to Dixon fans Friday night at 8:30 o'clock in the airport hangar. Featuring the card are five 5-round matches between Louis Viscioni and Garland Parnell of Springfield, and Joe Kelly against Johnny Becker, the latter the semi-finalist.

Another five round encounter will pair Bernard Stunkle of Steward against Joe Modona of Peoria in the 122 lb. class. Fans will be interested in seeing what Stunkle can do against the Peorian following his desperate struggle with a surprisingly strong foe in Connie Fey last week. Fey fought a stubborn battle and but for the fact that he lost his temper, might have sent Stunkle to the canvas.

Another Good Fight. Pete Voskis, the scrappy little Greek from Moline, is paired for a match with Vinc Sinicella of Springfield. These two collided here at the Belier's Bakery anniversary entertainment at the airport recently and staged a two-fisted knockdown battle in which each fighter was floored several times before Voskis finally knocked out his rival. The battle between the two will go five rounds Friday.

Maurice Stunkle is paired with Lou Parks of Moline at 147 lbs. and is a favorite to win. Sam Karben will go into the ring at 135 lbs. against Jimmy Shepherd of Peoria, a Golden Gloves champ. Billy LeHue, who does not seem to look so hot but always manages to spring a surprise kayo, will tangle with Chuck Burroughs at 155 lbs. Killer Hess of Wauwung and Hendricks have both felt the lethal punch of LeHue.

Cubs Razz Umpire; Learn He Once Was ... Cub Star Himself

Detroit, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Chicago's impetuous young Cubs, still riding high, have little or no concern for ancient history.

Vaguely they had heard that George Moriarty, senior American league umpire in the World Series, had once played with the Detroit Tigers. So they started "riding him" yesterday on balls-and-strikes decisions. They shouted "homer" so loud and so often, between other pointed remarks, that George went over to the bench onco pipe them down.

What the Cubs didn't know was that Moriarty once played third base on their own club. He was with the Cubs under Frank Selee before moving into the Tiger fold in Hughie Jennings' days.

THREE EVIL "TS" PLAGUE ILLINI GRID PRACTICE

Lindberg Injured in Ohio U. Scrap Still Useless

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Hardly recovered from the sting of last week's surprise defeat by Ohio University, Illinois was having troubles today with the three evil "Ts" of football—injuries, illness and ineffectibility.

On top of the loss of Les Lindberg, their most capable all-around back who was hurt in the Ohio University 6 to 0 reverse, the Illini had to limp through practice for the Washington University game Saturday minus five other members of the first squad.

Iowa, Chicago, Northwestern and Minnesota also had similar troubles in lesser numbers. Iowa's Bob Lannon and Gordon Matson, regular ends, and Harry Kelley, a big guard, may be out of Saturday's tussle with South Dakota because of injuries.

Chicago Also Suffers. Chicago yesterday lost Ralph Balfanz, a good reserve back, by ineffectibility, and Northwestern may have to battle Purdue in Saturday's Big Ten opener without tackle Sam Papich and Babe Bender, regular end. Minnesota's regular guards, Vernon Oech and Charles Wilkinson, were out of practice with injuries.

Purdue drilled to perfect timing of its offensive yesterday while Northwestern divided its session between defensive measures and a polishing up of new plays.

Michigan spent another workout on ways and means of stopping Michigan State plays, while Ohio State went through a brisk rehearsal in preparation for Saturday's opening game with Kentucky.

Wisconsin practiced in secret. Iowa brushed up on lateral and forward pass maneuvers, and Minnesota's regulars worked on fundamentals and signals. Bo McMillin drilled Indiana against passes he expects his alma mater, Centre college, to toss in the Hoosiers' opening game, while Coach Clark Shaughnessy enlarged the Chicago offense to provide ball carrying help for Jay Berwanger.

ODDS SHIFT ON CUB CHANCES TO WIN THE SERIES

Impatient Chicago Fans Awaiting Their Return

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—While the ticket speculators cooled off, Chicago Cub fans awaited the return of their idols with mounting enthusiasm.

With police, detectives and department of internal revenue men lurking about to discourage scalpers, ticket prices showed signs of coming down to earth. Where operators were holding out yesterday for as high as $75 for three game box seat strips, today's quotation was $50. Grandstand strips were offered at $30 as compared to the opening demand of $50.

The Cubs' workmanlike 3 to 0 victory put the Tigers at Detroit yesterday, and Lon Warneke's brilliant pitching were discussed and rediscussed. After the game wagering odds shifted from even money to 9 to 5 on the Cubs to win the series.

The triumph failed to lengthen the line of aspirants to bleacher seats which go on sale the day of each game.

A force of 464 police has been assigned to handle crowds and motor traffic in the vicinity of Wrigley Field during the two- or three-days of world championship baseball activity in Chicago.

Ducks May Be Fed in Ill: But No Hunting

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Conservation Director C. F. Thompson today announced that, under an interpretation of federal regulations on waterfowl hunting, ducks may be fed in Illinois provided there is no shooting over baited areas. He said the ruling, a reversal of last year's practice is to the advantage of Illinois hunters.

Thompson conferred with representatives of Jay N. Darling, the federal conservation chief.

One ounce of gold can be beaten out so thin that it will cover an area of 146 square feet.

In 1933, fewer than 2,000,000 persons in this country had taxable incomes.

BELVIDERE TO WAGE SCRAPPY BATTLE HERE

Dixon High Opens N. C. I. Slate in Saturday Game

Boone county's N. C. I. conference representative, Belvidere, invades the Dixon high school football field here, Saturday, Oct. 5, hoping desperately for an upset victory over the Purple and White lightweights and heavyweights. For both teams the contests will inaugurate the conference season.

Belvidere has fared well in its pre-conference tests with non-league foes. The Purple and Gold defeated Sycamore in their opening game, 6 to 0. The triumph was more or less of a surprise to Belvidere followers as the Boone county team had opened its season with the dimmest prospects in years following a victoryless season in 1934. Added to Belvidere's problems was the fact that no capable reserves existed to replace the heavyweights in case of injuries. This problem is still troubling the Belvidere mentor.

In its second pre-season test, Belvidere humbled Polo 6 to 0 to keep its goal line unsullied, but against Harvard the modest victory string of the Purple and Gold hit a snag and Harvard won 8 to 0. Belvidere's surprise resistance however, foretells a stubborn battle against Dixon Saturday.

Greatest Since McReynolds The locals appear to hold the greatest promise of any team since McReynolds' day. Coach C. B. Lindell has a veteran line in which Louis Schumm, the only replacement, working in Mossholder's shoes is proving his ability as a signal-caller and centre. He is flanked by two tough guards in Parker and Marshall, while Boos and Evans are two of the toughest tackles in the conference. On the ends L. Miller and Klein are a constant menace on the offensive as well as the defense.

The backfield, though raw, is making great strides behind the experienced forward wall. Rebeck is the kingpin of the backfield offense, while Don Miller is showing exceptional speed particularly in his end runs. Cliff Swanlund and Ankeny have been darting for long gains through the line.

Many Were Doubtful The defeat of Rock Falls at Dixon's hands by a 33 to 0 score did not fully convince local fans that Coach Lindell had a real team on the field. Many attributed Rock Falls collapse to poor Falls material this year. The local showing against the heavy Rockford Rams, champions of the Big Seven, who won a 13 to 7 victory only with the greatest difficulty proved the Purple team is possible championship timber, provided their successes don't go to their heads.

Beside Sterling Township high, defending its 1934 N. C. I. conference title, served notice on Dixon last Saturday it is not to be too lightly regarded, by flattening Polo under an avalanche of touchdowns, 39 to 6, in which the first team scored 20 points in the first quarter and then retired from the field.

CHARLIE ROOT WILL TWIRL IN SERIES TODAY

Sensational Work This Year Wins Him Chance

Detroit, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Charlie Root, the man nominated to crack the whip over the Tigers today in the second act of the World Series show, really rowed his way back to pitching fame and another chance. A year ago, the stout-hearted of the Chicago Cubs was labeled a "washed up" pitcher. He bosses put him on the shelf and forgot about him after they had tried to trade him off in job lots on last winter's player mart. And then Charlie took a boat ride—to Australia.

"And I rowed all the way back and got the old soup bone working like it never did before," explained Charlie as he took a man's size bite at a plug of probably the strongest chewing tobacco that ever was nibbled.

Took Fat Off

"Tell you what I did. I had developed a roll of fat across my shoulders. It bothered my wind-up. So, coming back from Australia, I rowed on a rowing machine all the way. I got it off and think I got more steam than I ever had."

The Cubs, notably Manager Charlie Grimm, knew something had happened to their "grandpappy" when the 36-year-old veteran reported at spring camp. He wound up and almost knocked catcher Gabby Hartnett over on the first pitch, and he never stopped.

He developed a knuckle ball and delivered the Cubs 15 victories they needed.

Jack is taking no chance with an outsider as the third man in the ring and so will do all the refereeing himself. The feature bout is between Frankie Battaglia and Kid Leonard with 24 additional rounds of boxing support the main go.

APPARENT SUICIDE.

Lincoln, Ill.—Funeral services are being planned for Dr. B. C. Roberts, 69, for 46 years an osteopath in Lincoln, who was found shot to death in his garage. A shotgun was found at his side.

Discovery May Be Financial Loss To Management

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The $15,000 added Gold Cup, top feature of Hawthorne's race meeting, may cost the management money Saturday—because of the presence of Discovery, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's handicapper champion.

Under the conditions of the race, a weight-for-age event, and the lack lack of a rival capable of giving him any kind of a battle, the four-year-old son of Display may go to the post at the shortest price in Chicago race history. But, regardless of how short the odds on the board, Illinois racing commission rules require the track to pay not less than 1 to 10, or at least $20 across the board.

Roth Conceded A Good Chance For Boxing Victory

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Tony Canzoneri, the fighting man from Marlboro, N. Y., will come to the big town tomorrow night to meet the challenge of young Al Roth for the world's lightweight boxing championship.

A couple of years ago Roth was a training camp punching bag for Tony. He's conceded a good chance of dethroning Canzoneri, but some fight experts are wondering if he will be plagued by an inferiority complex.

Roth became a star in his own right last summer with convincing victories over Leonard Del Genio and Davey Day, outstanding title contenders.

AMERICA'S ECONOMY IS WAR-SHAKEN

Wheat Advances as Result of March- ing Fee Abroad

Washington, Oct. 3—(AP)—With the sensitivity of a seismograph recording tremors far away, America's economy already is reacting to the threatened war abroad.

As the thud of marching feet overseas shook stock prices to lower levels yesterday and sent wheat values kiting in the Chicago pit, leaders here and elsewhere swiftly declared that America's mind is set on peace, and against foreign entanglements. Secretary Hull called on churchmen to conduct a "flaming crusade" for peace.

The day's market news prompted another cabinet member, Secretary Wallace, to turn his mind back to 1914 and then to issue a warning to farmers to beware of pitfalls such as trapped some of them at that time.

Noting that Chicago wheat prices had jumped five cents (the limit allowed on a single day), Wallace expressed a belief that farmers should think twice before going heavily into debt and buying new lands on the strength of speculative prices. They should consider, he said, the slumps which follow speculative soarings.

Farmers Warned
"They might consider the inevitable distortion of judgment which takes place in time of excitement," he said. "It is easy to accept, thankfully what comes, but it also would be well to consider the eventual repercussions."

His remarks came at the close of a day which, besides the reactions on stock and grain exchanges, brought government reports showing near-record shipments of American cotton lint (potential materials for explosives), scrap iron and steel, truck and tractors to Italy.

Secretary Hull spoke soon after President Roosevelt, in his San Diego address, had said the American people's one concern is that this country must remain "untangled and free."

Hull, addressing a mass meeting of people of several religious faiths called by the Committee on Religious Life, said:

"Present dangers are a challenge to the church to engage in what should be nothing less than a flaming crusade."

Remarks Endorsed
Roosevelt's remark that the United States is determined to "avoid those perils that endanger our peace with the world" brought expressions of agreement from several quarters today.

Senator Davis (R., Pa.), although questioning some other policies touched on by the President on his trip westward said: "I'm strong for the President when he says he's not going to get us into any foreign entanglements. It's a God-given thing that we are not in the League of Nations or tied up in the World Court."

Senator Black (D., Ala.) said the people are in accord with the President's views and "will uphold him in maintaining them to the limit."

Senator Norris (R., Neb.) said "we must keep out of a world war as we ought to have kept out of the former world war."

Injunction Against Walgreen is Denied

Chicago (AP)—Superior Court Judge Charles A. Williams denied motion for an injunction restraining the Walgreen drug stores from collecting the state sales tax through the use of tax tokens. Attorneys said the case would be appealed to the supreme court. The injunction is sought on the grounds that the issuance of tokens is unconstitutional.

Lionskin Drumheads Call Ethiopians to Unite to Do Battle With Italians

All Differences Forgotten as Nation Springs to Arms

Addis Ababa, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Lionskin drumheads, silent since Menelik roused the nation to arms against the Italians in 1896, early today echoed throughout this city as Emperor Haile Selassie called his forces into the field.

Taken up by drummers on the mountain crests surrounding the capital, the dramatic call to arms was sent reverberating across the roof of Africa, penetrating the frontiers of Egypt, the Sudan, Kenya, and Somaliland, and reaching across the Red Sea.

Even along the borders of Italian Somaliland and Eritrea was Haile Selassie's call relayed by drumbeaters, town criers and trumpeters. Their thundering signals aroused the nation.

Differences forgotten. Chieftains, Mohammedans, Pagans and Jews, forgetting their religious differences, united in a determination to resist invaders.

Tens of thousands of soldiers were already stationed on distant frontiers of the empire, crouching behind rocks, hidden in bushes and caves and perched on mountain tops.

Drenched by torrential rains, they forgot their privations as they learned of Haile Selassie's momentous call to duty.

Mounted couriers raced over arid deserts, across fields and through ravines, heralding to nomadic tribes that the hour of war had struck.

Shepherds dropped their staffs and seized rifles, entrusting their flocks to grandfathers too old or weak to fight.

Great feudal chiefs galloped into villages and jungles, hastily organizing braves for battle.

Mules, horses and camels, hurriedly brought from the fields, were mobilized like men.

"Close Ranks, Unite." The word throughout the empire was the emperor's Amharic word, "Kitef," which means, "close ranks, unite."

People of the most remote villages of the kingdom, ranging from Pagan negroes of Wallaga province who eat alligators, to the wild tribes of Wallama province who devour hippopotami, were shaken out of their lethargic existence into a frenzy of patriotism.

Mortal enemies, embittered by long unsettled family and personal feuds, buried the hatchet in their common desire to save the fatherland.

Native bards playing Biblical harps and chanting the Psalms of David aroused patriots to the highest pitch of martial ardor with their plaintive music.

Women Take Up Song. As women heard the cry they broke into militant song, pounded drums and fired their men with the spirit of sacrifice and bravery.

It was a solemn day for all. Grey-bearded, bent heroes of Adowa, now too old to go back to the wars, gave their magic amulets to sons and grandsons. They believe these talismans make them invulnerable to Italian gunfire.

Aged witches, with more faith in sorcery than nature, gave their kinsmen secret herbal medicines to heal wounds.

Thousands of sheep were being slaughtered and their blood blessed by priests as sacrifice for victory.

Pagan tribes flocked to sacred trees for inspirational communion with the spirits.

Here in the capital, the mayor and his army proceeded to the streets to insure order and security. Tribal chiefs, garbed in lion manes and riding gorgeously-comparisomed mules and horses, made up a memorable spiritual pageant to the palace.

At the last minute it was decided that the emperor's Chancellor, ale Woldehouse, should read the proclamation for Selassie.

Anti-Jewish Drives Resumed in Germany

Berlin, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A relentless weeding-out of Jews from public and business life gave impetus today to the anti-Semitic drive in the Third Reich.

All Jewish notaries who had been permitted to continue their business on the ground that they were old trench fighters, it was learned, have been deprived of their offices by a circular order.

Reichsleiter Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, announced that the Koesener Student League—Germany's greatest student organization, which had defied government demands that it cleanse its ranks of non-Aryans—had "dissolved itself."

"Reactionaries lost their last stronghold among students with the end of this organization," the newspaper said.

HARVARD TEACHER REFUSES TO SWEAR LOYALTY

Boston, Oct. 3.—(AP)—One of Harvard's best known educators, Dr. Kirtley F. Mather, has given public notice he will defy the new law requiring teachers to take an oath of allegiance to the national and state constitutions.

The noted geologist and director of the Harvard summer school announced this decision in an address last night.

The "teachers' oath bill"—which was supposed in legislative hearings by such prominent university leaders as President James B. Conant of Harvard—"violates my constitutional rights as a citizen and teacher," Dr. Mather declared.

The educator said he had taken such oaths before, "but in each instance I was to perform an appropriate function as a government official. But in my capacity as a member of the faculty of Harvard University I am not an official of the government and never should I be so considered."

Dr. Payson Smith, state commissioner of education, has said the law carries no penalties for those refusing to take the oath.

NEW CHIEF OF STAFF OF ARMY WAS APPOINTED

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A husky 62-year-old cavalryman, a veteran of two wars, took command today as the new Chief of Staff of the army.

He is Major General Malin Craig, now commander of the War College, to whose lot will fall the task of enlisting more than 25,000 men in the ranks and building up the air corps to a full fighting strength of 2500 planes.

Craig was selected by President Roosevelt yesterday. The new army leader succeeds General Douglas MacArthur, now enroute to the Philippines to become military adviser to President-elect Manuel Quezon.

One of the first tasks facing

Craig, who assumes the rank of a full general, will be mechanization of the cavalry in which he served for many years. His immediate plans, however, were not known.

ROOSEVELT ON HIGH SEAS TO GET GAME FISH

Final Address on Shore Tells of Determination for Peace

En Route with President Roosevelt on the Pacific, Oct. 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt cruised southward off the Pacific coast of Mexico today after a review of the United States fleet and a sharp notice to the world of America's determination to remain "untangled and free."

The president boarded the navy cruiser Houston late yesterday at San Diego, and from it watched the naval demonstration, which ended at sunset. It was one of the most complete tactical exercises of the fleet.

Off the Coronados Islands, just over the boundary from the United States and still in sight of the lights of San Diego, Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, commander of the fleet, departed to return to his flagship.

Then the Houston turned southward, escorted by the cruiser Portland.

Expects Much Sport. Returning to Washington after his transcontinental tour, Roosevelt was looking forward to engaging in his favorite sport while cruising toward the Panama Canal.

Yesterday's demonstration of naval power, the most spectacular ever witnessed by a chief executive of the nation, followed Roosevelt's speech in which he declared:

"We not only earnestly desire peace but we are moved by a stern determination to avoid those perils that will endanger our peace with the world."

Despite what happens in other nations, the president said in his speech here yesterday, "The United States of America shall and must remain untangled and free."

This nation, he said, "intends and expects to remain at peace with the world."

SONS OF IL DUCE WERE PILOTS OF BOMBING PLANES

Paris, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Addis Ababa correspondent of the newspaper Paris-Soir reported today that Premier Mussolini's sons, Bruno and Vittorio, and his son-in-law,

Count Galeazzo Ciano, were among the pilots of an air squadron which bombed Aduwa.

The correspondent said there were 15 planes in the squadron. He added that an Italian column crossed the Ethiopian frontier, headed toward Aduwa, at 6:30 A. M. (9:30 P. M. Wednesday Central Standard Time.)

Women and children were killed in the bombardment at Aduwa, the correspondent said, and many houses were destroyed by aerial bombs.

He said the column penetrating Ethiopia from Eritrea had encountered advance Ethiopian troops about 20 miles north of the frontier and engaged them in battle.

PRIMARY FIGHT IN DEMOCRATIC PARTY PROBABLE

Reports of Nash-Kelly
Support of Horner
Set at Rest

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 2.—(AP)—A primary fight among Illinois Democrats over the governorship became more probable today.

There was silence at the executive mansion as Democratic politicians at the state house pondered the declaration of Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago that "I have no candidate for governor."

Governor Horner, an announced candidate for a second term, made no comment.

His supporters went ahead with their efforts, started several months ago, to line up political forces to give the chief executive the renomination next April. One of the Horner lieutenants said there was "no political significance" in the Kelly statement.

The mayor's failure to recognize the governor, who also comes from Chicago, as a candidate confirmed recurrent rumors that all is not well within the leadership of the majority party and that the Cook county organization might like to have another candidate for governor on the 1936 ticket.

Rumors Set at Rest.

It set at rest recent state house reports that Democratic peace had been made and that the Kelly-Nash support had been given the governor.

Kelly's declaration, made at Chicago yesterday, was taken in some places to mean that the Chicagoans, if they stay away from the Horner camp, so far haven't picked their own man for the job.

From Senator James O. Monroe of Collinsville, a Democrat who has frequently criticized the governor, came a suggestion that Horner should not run again. It was learned that Monroe wrote the governor that he would "certainly be defeated" in 1936 and might endanger the Democratic ticket.

Won't Step Aside.

The breach among the Democrats became apparent during the closing months of the legislative session. Kelly came to Springfield to direct in person the passage of his bills, some of which were vetoed.

The Horner men said that: 1. The governor is definitely and finally a candidate for a second term and is determined to

2. The governor won't step aside for another position, even if he should be offered the senatorship or a federal judgeship.

DAILY HEALTH

TREATING PYELITIS.

Pyelitis is a condition which calls for prompt and competent care. The prompt and effective handling of an acute case may prevent recurrence of the infection and a conversion of the acute condition into a chronic disease.

The acute attack may be, and usually is, painful and distressing. But the crippling consequences of the chronic infection are to be feared most.

A prolonged infection of the ureters, that is, of the tubes leading from the kidneys to the bladder, may cause the destruction of the smooth lining of the tubes, the formation of scars, which in time will contract, and by narrowing the calibre of the ureters will interfere further with the proper elimination of urine. The resulting back pressure, and other factors, may damage the vitally important kidney tissue.

We stress this pathologic chain of consequences in order to set in its proper light the significance and hazard of a neglected, acute attack of pyelitis. The "chronic bladder sufferer" most frequently is a victim of pyelitis. The sufferer's plight often can be charged to his or her negligence and procrastination.

The acute attack of pyelitis characterized by pain in the small of the back, a frequent urge to urinate, and pain, described as smarting or burning when voiding urine, can be competently treated. Bed rest, the intake of large amounts of fluid, and the use of urinary antiseptics and alkalies, properly prescribed by a physician, usually will bring relief to the sufferer.

The chronic case of pyelitis, however, does not so readily yield to treatment. In recent years, however, substantial progress has been made in dealing with even the chronic cases. By the use of a special diet rich in fats and poor in carbohydrates (sugars), a large percentage (85 per cent according to one study) of uncomplicated chronic pyelitis have been cured.

The reign of Charles I gave us the word "pin money." Pin-makers gave this monarch 500 pounds annually for his good wife, and he turned the sum over to his queen for her private use.

Lubrication of pins in the closed-car doors once a month makes it unnecessary to slam them, with the attendant danger of breaking the glass.

Where Ethiopian Troops Man Front, Await War

Though war drums have not yet begun to beat throughout Ethiopian hills for general mobilization, large forces of Haile Selassie's army have been gathering at the front in such outposts as that pictured above at Douenele along the French Somaliland border. Hinting at the imminence of war with Italy, armed soldiers are shown vigilantly guarding their frontier headquarters.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

HOME OF THE BLUE CAT

WAR or no war, the little island of Malta ever will be the controlling center of the extensive ship traffic that crosses the Mediterranean. Here the British Mediterranean fleet has its base.

Rising high on a rocky promontory of forts and bastions, this island, famous for its gray-blue cats, is considered second to Gibraltar in naval importance. The harbor of Valetta, named after its founder, Jean de la Valette, Grand Master of the Order of the Knights of Malta during the Turkish siege in 1565, has long been a haven for ships of the world—Phoenician, Greek, Carthaginian, Roman, Arab, and now British. For two and a half centuries it was the stronghold of the Knights of Malta, until Napoleon Bonaparte wrested it from them and the island came under British rule upon his downfall.

As a British colony, Malta issues its own stamps. The one shown here is the first of several issues on which the harbor at Valetta is illustrated.

The number of pairs of ribs is most commonly 13, in mammals, but among those now living on earth it ranges from nine in certain whales, to 24 in the two-toed sloth. Curiously, the easy-going sloth would seem to need a fewer number of ribs than most any other animal.

More Left-Handed School Equipment

Berkeley, Calif., Oct. 3—(AP)—More left-handed school room equipment for southpaw pupils was advocated here today by N. W. Lamb, a member of the faculty of the University of California high school. Himself a portside, Lamb made a special study of the situation under the auspices of school officials. Practical suggestions arising from study of the problem, Lamb said, indicate a need not only for left-handed arm chairs, but classroom seating so arranged that such students may have the most favorable light.

Hartford Strikers Prevent Re-opening of Tanning Factory

Hartford, Ill., Oct. 3—(AP)—Hundreds of strike pickets have prevented the re-opening of the International Shoe Company tannery here but there was no violence. The pickets formed ranks and turned away workers. Four carloads of company officials were permitted to enter. The plant was closed last May 20 when the United Leather Workers International Union local called a strike protesting the company's refusal to re-employ a worker who had been laid off. Sheriff Henry of Madison county said he, his deputies and highway patrolmen were prepared to handle the situation and did not need the aid of National Guard troops.

Liner Passengers Safe In Stirring Sea Rescue

Another stirring drama of the sea played out today in the rescue of 450 passengers from the Holland-America line flag ship Rotterdam to boats from the British rescue ship Ariguan. The picture shows the first boatload of passengers as they reached the British vessel, with helping hands ready to start them up the ladder, an officer waiting at the top. A mile distant, the Rotterdam is seen as it pounded on Morant Cay, a reef 60 miles from Kingston, Jamaica, in the dangerous Windward passage.

Pair Will Hop Sea to Surprise Ma

A glorious surprise, from right out of the skies, awaits a certain middle-aged Lisbon, Portugal, woman, if plans of Joe Costa, 26, fit, and his father, succeed. Soon, in the plane shown at top, the daring Danville, N. Y., pair hope to span the north Atlantic over the mapped route, and "drop in" on Mrs. Costa, who has not been told of their program.

The BLUE DOOR

CHAPTER XXXI

WITH Duncan Hunter's departure, Bertha Gibbs relaxed. The fears and uneasiness she had felt for him during his concealment in the house had caused her to become almost deranged. For years she had both dreaded and longed for his escape. This terrifying hope had culminated on the night when he reached the blue door. . . . And now he had gone. Not to live a fugitive's existence but to win his freedom, to come back to this house a normal man, with work to do like other men.

From the hour of Duncan Hunter's peaceful departure that morning Bertha was never again to be more than a loyal old servant who had had enough of loneliness. She had held the fort.

As for Elaine Chalmers, she spent a restless day. John's indifference to her, his criticism of her conduct infuriated her. She trembled when she thought of him standing before her mirror that day she renewed her vow to conquer him.

"That girl's the cause of it!" she thought angrily. Well, defeat could be turned into victory if you went about it properly. She'd use the little tramp as a means of reaching John McNeill. "I'll be sympathetic," she decided. "I'll join the search."

She watched for John to return home. Dusk was falling when his car turned into the driveway and she saw him get out and go into the house. Elaine quickly slipped into a coat and ran across the lawn. He opened the door at her ring. "John," she said in a soft husky voice, "is there any news of her?"

The girl's sympathy reached him, as a woman's sympathy will reach any man. He believed her to be as repentant and concerned as she looked. "Sit down," he urged. "I'll tell you what I know."

They sat together on the old Empire sofa and he noticed how strikingly beautiful she was. She had intended him to notice it. There was a heady, provocative perfume about her that no man could ignore—loveliness at several dollars an ounce.

Elaine said urgently, "Tell me all you know, John. I've been rather a little beast. Will you find her, do you think?"

"I believe I will," he answered eagerly. "We're on the trail. A Cleveland detective agency checked all the hotels and lodging houses—especially the cheap ones—but there wasn't a trace. Then they set to work on the theory that some one might have noticed her on the road Tuesday morning. Somebody did. There's a garage about midway to Cleveland that replaced a spent coil for a man named Segwick. It happens the garage owner had to take the man's check for the work and hadn't yet cashed it. Segwick's address was on the check, too."

"Was she with him?" Elaine asked.

"We think so," John responded.

"The garage people say the woman in the car was the man's wife. That was brought out when they tried to raise the money between them to pay for the job. The girl with them seemed to be a stranger they'd picked up. The description of her tallies—"

THE telephone rang. John excused himself hastily to answer it. Elaine could not hear what he said, but she suspected that he was speaking with a detective.

"Well?" she asked when he had sat down beside her again.

He said, in an elated voice, "They think they've found her! They've located the Segwicks. The Segwicks admit picking up such a girl and taking her in to Cleveland. They said she was broke and they got her a job, working as a maid for some woman who owns a beauty shop—taking care of the woman's kids. They'll know in half an hour if she's the girl."

Elaine thought, "So he's found her! Well, it's better this way. He'd have been obsessed about her if she'd gotten away. Men are like that. He must bring her back here to the Hunter house. To me. He must see us together; that's my only chance."

She asked, "Did you make any provision against her running away again? Suppose she refuses to come with the detectives?"

He explained, "That's why they called before they'd finished the job. They wanted instructions. I told them to pretend to arrest her and bring her back here. Would you mind sticking around with me till she comes?"

Elaine would not mind. She went home only long enough to tell Penny she was having dinner with John McNeill and to change into a dinner dress—something pale green and draped by a Parisian expert. Over her short hair she pinned a heavy golden plait that made her look like Everyman's First Sweetheart.

She threw a short ermine cape around her (that was to remind John that she was still Elaine Chalmers, the glamorous) and went back to him. They had dinner together under Susie's popping eyes. After dinner Elaine played for him on the big piano that used to be Florence's, and sang all the songs that he asked for from the Princeton Triangle plays. Now and then he got up and walked to the window or the door and looked out. Now and then he paced the floor. Elaine would talk to him then about the girl they were waiting for.

Once she said teasingly, "And you don't even know her name!"

"But I do now!" he declared, like an eager boy. "It's Ruth Woodson. The telephone call confirmed that."

He told her then about the night they were arrested for speeding en route to the Mountain Cabin, and how she had given that name to the traffic cop. He said, "When I was thinking it over today, the hunch came to me that that was her own name. Ruth Woodson."

"Ruth Woodson," echoed Elaine thoughtfully. Mentally she compared it with Elaine Chalmers and found it wanting. "Shall we play double solitaire or shoot billiards? Your pacing around this way makes me nervous."

THEY had time to do both. They even turned on the radio and danced. Once when the music stopped Elaine forgot to move away and remained within the circle of John McNeill's dropped arm, the fingers of her right hand still clinging to the fingers of his left.

WHEH the laws of the Naval Academy permitted it, Elaine Chalmers married Dennis Davis in a simple, forthright manner. Her world was surprised. In response to pressing questions from reporters she had this statement to make:

"Once I saw a young man in love with a girl. I mean in love. Since then I've known I could never marry any man unless he looked at me as that young man looked at his girl."

"How did he look at her?" asked the curious reporters, pencils poised.

She called across the room, "Dennis, what time is it?"

Dennis Davis said, "You know I don't carry a watch, Elaine." But he looked at her as he said it, and the reporters saw. All of them tried to describe that look afterward, but gave it up.

POTATO SYMBOL OF ECONOMIC-POLITICAL TILT

Administration Bill to Control Crops Campaign Issue

Washington, Oct. 3—(AP)—The plebeian potato, which almost overnight has become a symbol of a mighty political and economic quarrel, was given a hearing at the AAA today.

The AAA called the hearing, officials said, to find out what farmers and consumers think about the question of potato control—rapidly shaping us as a chief talking point for the 1936 campaign.

As the witnesses gathered, they found themselves confronted by a situation perhaps unique in recent annals of the government:

A cabinet member, Secretary Wallace, was declaring flatly that he doesn't want to enforce an act passed by Congress and that he is "going to do all I can to avoid enforcing it. The act he referred to was the Warren potato control bill.

For Compulsory Control

The law seeks to clamp an iron-bound system of compulsory control on potatoes. It provides for quotas for potato growers, with a prohibitive tax on production in excess of quotas, and is armed with jail penalties for wilful buyers or bootleg potatoes.

Low prices for the tubers had brought strong demands from some chief producing areas that Congress do something about it. The control bill was the move Congress decided upon. It was supported by some Democrats and some Republicans, including Senators Bailey (D. N. C.) and Borah (R. Ida.).

Bailey argued that AAA restrictions on other crops led farmers to turn to growing more potatoes. The AAA denied this.

The world's oldest art is said to be architecture. Earliest dated architectural remains are those of the Babylonians, which date as far back as 6000 B. C.

Fifty thousand fans, packed into every nook of the Navin field stands in Detroit, watched the first game of the world series, this picture showing part of the colorful throng in grandstand and bleachers and a clear view of the playing field where the Cubs clawed the Tigers.

"OLD MAC" WINS NICHE IN HEART OF COMMUNITY

Quaint Character of Crawford Avenue Here 34 Years

Depression and pessimistic views of the Italo-Ethiopian embroglio, or worries about meeting payments on the new lexbox, Ford V-8 radio or some other modern extravagance do not upset the equilibrium of "Old Mac" Dixon's best example of the simple life lived happily.

His name is Charles McIntire, but since he first settled here thirty-four years ago he has been known only as "Old Mac" affectionately in the hearts of his large circle of friends whom he has served since 1901. "Old Mac" has become virtually an institution. To a few Dixon families on Crawford avenue he is indispensable.

Born in Red Wing, Minn., he went east with his parents spending a few years in Maine, New Hampshire and other states before returning, following their death, to Mattoon, Ill., and later upon the advice of a brother moving here, to make his niche in life.

Made His Niche
And his friends will agree that "Old Mac" has made the most of his humble station in life. He resides in plain but comfortable quarters in a barn owned by J. T. Little, 402 Crawford avenue. His days are filled with tasks of service to the Little family and to many neighbors. The tidiness of their lawns, the beauties of their flower gardens and yards they owe in part to the labors of "Old Mac" who tends them with the care of a father administered a child. Snow is kept from the walks and the smoke of many fires built by "Old Mac" pours from chimneys of the neighborhood in winter. His services are sought from Bluff Park to DeWittsburg, and the results are always gratifying.

Despite his arduous life, "Old Mac" does not neglect the human touch. His leisure moments are spent in gleaming from companions on the street the gossip of the day. The long winter evenings are made short for "Old Mac" by his avid appetite for books, particularly history. He has read as many volumes of English history as he could obtain including Wilson's and Bancroft's and nearly all histories of the United States. He has also patiently delved through several volumes of Gibbon's "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire." A mere two years of schooling created in "Old Mac" a flaming desire for education and he strove through his reading to attain it.

"Old Mac's" memory is little short of remarkable. His retention of details in books he has read is amazing. He can name all the kings of England back to the Norman conquest.

Knew All Governors
"Once I knew by heart all the governors of the states since the Revolution he said. "If I wanted to, I could learn 'em again in a jiffy." And upon offering a practical demonstration of his retentive powers, one can scarcely doubt "Old Mac's" word.

"Old Mac" thinks England can stop the Italo-Ethiopian war single-handed and emphatically believes the Cubs will win the World Series.

"That Warneke is a whiz," he said.

But whether the Cubs win or lose or England fails to live up to its expectations, "Old Mac" will go on living in his frugal way, loaning a few cents here and a few dollars there to those he considers less fortunate. Meanwhile whether or not financial prosperity comes his way or little good deeds of his return in tangible form, "Old Mac" will continue to drain the cup of life's friendships and contentment and trudge about his daily tasks with a song in his heart.

Doctor's Wife Goes to Trial Accused as Kidnaping 'Brains'

Accused as the brains and "finger woman" in the abduction four years ago of Dr. Isaac Kelly in St. Louis, Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, former social leader, went to trial in Mexico, Mo., third suspect to face court hearing. Two others have been convicted. Mrs. Muench is shown here in a recent picture, with her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench. The accused is a member of a family prominent in Missouri politics and sister of Supreme Court Justice E. M. Tipton.

Dr. Aubrey S. Moore Conference's Choice

Elgin, Ill., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Election of Dr. Aubrey S. Moore, superintendent of the North Chicago district, as head of the Methodist Chicago City Mission Society was ratified today at the 96th annual meeting of the Rock River Methodist Episcopal conference.

Dr. Moore succeeds Dr. John Thompson of Chicago.

His appointment was asked of Chicago area Bishop Ernest L. Waldorf at the opening session of the conference.

Five hundred delegates from 300 northern Illinois churches attended the conference, at which today's leading speakers were to be Dr. Ivan Lee Holt of St. Louis, Mo., president of the Federal Council of Churches, and Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of Washington.

Then suddenly I heard a voice, the lips were moving slowly. And this is what they said to me. I swear by all that's holy.

POETS' CORNER

A VOICE FROM BEYOND

Last night while reading a history book, and glancing o'er the scenes Pleasant thoughts were coursing thru my mind. I was deep in rosy dreams.

But as I turned a certain page, I was seized with fascination. For 'twas a tragic face I saw; the It appeared alive, that picture did.

as if he were there in the flesh. And the things I saw in that deep lined face, filled my heart with sore distress.

I felt my soul was bared to his gaze, and it made me cower with dread.

Was I dreaming it all, did that face live again, was I being judged by the dead?

I stared, spell bound, I could not move nor turn another page; How long I sat I do not know; to me, it was an age.

Then suddenly I heard a voice, the lips were moving slowly. And this is what they said to me. I swear by all that's holy.

"Have you forgotten my poor men, who gave their lives for you?"

"Have you turned traitor to yourself, and to your country too? "Will you stand by to see your flag and Constitution fall?"

"Will you turn your back when once again I rise to give the call?"

"Would you have your loved ones trampled, neath the feet of alien knaves?"

"Would you see your Dad and Mother, Wife and Sister used as slaves?"

"Would you see your sons and brothers, murdered cold before your eyes?"

"While at night you would be haunted by their dying moans and cries?"

"Where are your American patriots, men who should have been on guard?"

"Has my memory been forgotten? Has the struggle been too hard?"

"Does your blood run thin as water? Has your heart been turned to stone?"

"Don't you care at all, to do your share, to protect your flag and home?"

"'Twas I that laid the cornerstone of this Republic, which you own."

"It is mortared well with broken hearts and blood of men I've known."

"We gave our all that you might live, to enjoy the riches it brought."

"But all in vain, you're letting it go—the ideal for which we fought."

"Oh! If I could live my life again with all my soldiers true."

"We would gladly take up arms once more, and fight this battle for you."

"The time has come, but it's up to you! The enemy is at your door!"

"Will you fight for that which I gave you, Son, or betray me as you did before?"

Then came a pause. I waited for more, but the lips had ceased to speak.

The words I heard had struck me hard and left me shaken and weak.

For I realized then how I'd failed his trust not being on guard as I should.

I had fallen down as a patriot. In the light of a slacker I stood.

I pray that my God will give me strength, and the power to do what's right;

That He'll show us a way, my breed and I, of winning this coming fight;

For we've got to band together now, and fight this battle to win. We must save the work of Washington! We owe that much to him.
